GAS FUMES FATAL TO AGED WOMAN; MATE NEAR DEATH

Mrs. Walter Atwell, of Monaville, Is Found
Dead in Home

AGED COUPLE LIVED ALONE

Mrs. Walter Atwell, 75, of Monaville, was found dead and her husband, 83, was found in a state of unconsciousness, in an easy chair behind the stove early yesterday morning when Henry Atwell, a son, broke through the window of their farm home after he had failed to receive a response to his knock at the door.

Dr. W. W. Warriner, of Antioch, who was called, was unable to bring Mr. Atwell back to consciousness. Latest reports have it that the aged man, who was removed to the home of his son in Lake Villa, is still unconscious.

Upon investigation, it was found that the deadly gas had been freed from the stove as the result of an imperfect operation of the flue. It is thought that since the stove was a new one, the old man did not understand how to operate it. An unexplainable thing about the tragedy is that Mrs. Atwell, who slept about 20 feet from the stove, should be more quickly affected than her husband, who was seated but a few feet from it.

The dead woman was the second wife of Atwell, having married him in 1900, a year after the death of the first Mrs. Atwell. The couple had no children, but Mr. Atwell is the father of four sons, Fred, Henry, William, and Albert, of this vicinity, and a daughter, Mrs. Nellie Wilson, of Zenda, Wis., by his first wife.

The funeral of the aged woman will be held from the Lake Villa church Saturday at two o'clock.

HONORING THE BOYS WHO ARE GONE
AND THOSE WHO ARE HERE

NOVEMBER ELEVENTH

It is our desire, on this day of each year, to express as ably as we may our sincere feelings of gratitude to those who gave so freely and so nobly of their all that we, as a nation, might endure. May those who passed on to their reward rest in peace. May those who were spared be with us for long to enjoy the fruits of their sacrifice.

HORACE R. ADAMS DIES IN CHICAGO AFTER OPERATION

Funeral of Prominent Lumberman Held
Here Tuesday

STORES CLOSE DURING SERVICE

Relatives, friends, business associates, and hundreds of acquaintances today mourn the death of Horace R. Adams, senior member of the firm that bears his name and for 16 years a highly respected citizen of Antioch.

Mr. Adams died in the Henretian hospital in Chicago, Saturday afternoon, following an operation. It was thought that his recovery was assured until a blood clot entered his heart, causing his death.

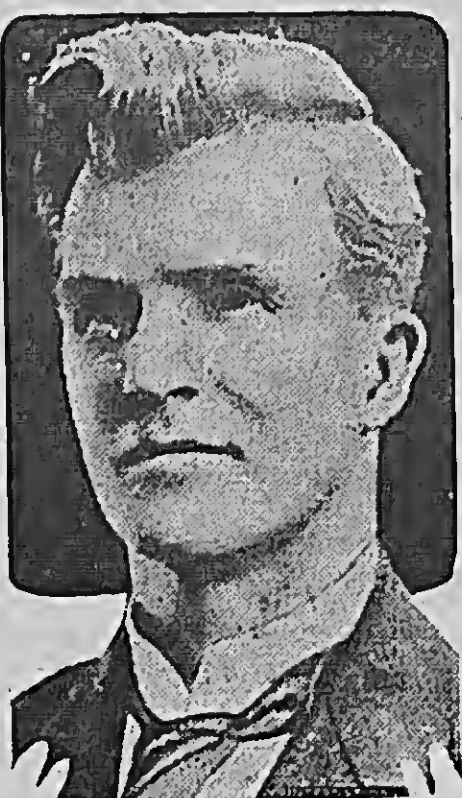

The deceased was born in Kenosha, Wis., July 16, 1882. He came to Antioch 16 years ago and entered into the lumber business, which through his constructive leadership, has developed into one of the best of its kind in this section of the state. His parents, Henry H. and Mary E. Adams, both of whom preceded him in death, were prominent citizens of Kenosha for a number of years.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Ethel Adams, of Antioch. He was unmarried.

Funeral services were held from the home in Antioch at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, with Rev. Howard Gauster officiating. An escort was provided by the Waukegan Commandery of Knights Templar, while the burial in Greenfield cemetery in Kenosha was in charge of the Masonic order.

Out of respect for Mr. Adams, business houses in Antioch were closed from 10 to 11 o'clock Tuesday, during the funeral services.

GEORGE JOHNSON AIDS IN ARREST OF BURGLAR

Pursues Bandit's Cab in Two Mile Chase Over
City Streets

Prompted by a desire to offer his assistance in chasing a bandit who had attempted to rob the Illinois Athletic club, 112 S. Michigan ave., Chicago, George H. Johnson, of Chicago and Antioch, who was attracted by a shot fired at the robber as he and his wife were passing in their automobile, was partly responsible for his capture after pursuing him for a distance of two miles Sunday.

Bandit Points Gun at Porter

The gunman, Thomas Gavin, 28, of 843 Galt avenue, entered the club lobby at 6:45 a. m., at which time Edward Hansen, 61, well-known club porter, was behind the clerk's counter, while the night clerk, Thomas Kelly, 22, was preparing to go off duty. Gavin, whose companion was awaiting him in a cab at the curb, pointed the pump gun at Hansen, after which he ordered him to "hand over everything." As the night watchman heard this remark, he walked into the lobby with his hands above his head, saying, "We haven't much on hand, but I'll give it all to you." Realizing the irresponsibility of the drunken burglar, he opened the cash register and handed over $71 in bills and $13 in silver.

Gunman Dissatisfied With Prag

Dissatisfied with the amount which the night clerk had given him, the holdup man ordered Kelly to open the safe. "I'll give you just three seconds to open that safe," he growled. Insisting that only the manager knew the combination, the night clerk leaped and snatched the gun from Gavin's hand. The two men fell to the floor in a desperate struggle which came to an end when Kelly hit the robber over the head with the gun, after the latter had succeeded in loosening several of Kelly's teeth.

Hansen Shoots

Meanwhile, Hansen had secured an automatic from the cashier's cage, following which he fired at Gavin, who disregarded the bullet, even though it passed through his coat. Upon another attempt to wrestle with Kelly, the burglar noticed that Hansen was trying to get into a position to fire at him without injuring his fellow workman, as the result of which he decided to make his escape. Hansen fired twice, the first bullet hitting Gavin in the back before he stepped into the cab, and the second just escaping the car as they sped away. The last shot was the one which attracted the attention of George Johnson, who immediately offered his assistance in the capture of the men by pursuing them with his automobile. On the way he picked up a policeman and a watchman who, noticing the chase, jumped onto Johnson's running board. After several shots had been fired, Johnson ran the bandit and his companion to the curb at W. Harrison and Forquer streets, where they were captured. It was learned later that both men were cab drivers who had police records. Gavin was removed to the hospital, while his companion, who has been identified as Eddie Dufresne, 45, of 2606 Indiana ave., was taken to the Desplanches police station.

Pioneer Resident of Antioch Succumbs

Following a heart attack, Mrs. Chrysteen Harrison, a pioneer resident of Antioch, died suddenly at her home on Lake street, last night.

The deceased, who was born on March 2, 1843, in Lincoln, New York, is survived by two sons, Charles, of Waukegan, and Andrew, of Antioch, and a daughter, Mrs. Maud Story, of Harrison, Arkansas. Her husband died 14 years ago.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

HALF BILLION IN SHADY SECURITIES BARRED FROM STATE

Securities Department Protects Investors, Stratton Says

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 7, 1929.—Upwards of half a billion dollars in worthless and questionable securities have been barred from the Illinois investment market since the legislature created the state securities department ten years ago. Secretary of State William J. Stratton, who administers this office, announced today.

In this ten year period the department has qualified over five billion dollars worth of securities for sale. Commenting on this figure, Secretary of State Stratton declared that as times goes on the great wealth of Chicago and Illinois, with its almost unlimited ability to absorb securities, undoubtedly will lead to a larger volume of business in this department.

The securities department, the secretary of state said, through its power over the registration of brokers has been able to drive out of the business of selling securities a great number of crooked individuals and, through the power to require a substantial bond, has protected the public against inexperienced brokers and brokers with little capital investment. He stated that as a result of the efforts of the securities department, he stated that as a result of the efforts of the securities department, bucket shops have almost disappeared.

"The average investor," Secretary of State Stratton said, "has little time and practically no facilities for investigating the merit of securities that are offered. He cannot find out whether claims made by sellers of securities are true or, in fact, whether the seller is a reputable dealer or not. Of course, the securities department would not be justified in trying to substitute its judgment for that of the investor, nor can it properly interfere with the right of a man to speculate and take chances with his money. It can, however, and it does, endeavor to see that the investor is not imposed upon by false representations and it can at least strive to keep dishonest dealers from operating."

Mr. Stratton disclosed that in the current year up to October 1, $650,000 worth of securities were approved for sale by the department; 750 brokers and dealers and about 3500 agents or salesmen were registered.

In conclusion the secretary of state expressed the hope that in the near future more educational work can be carried on to teach the investing public how to protect itself.

WHOLE WORLD COMMEMORATES ARMISTICE DAY

Events on Nov. 11 Should Enliven Patriotic
Sentiment

By Agnes Menfang

Monday, November 11, is Armistice Day. Eleven years ago the world was thrilled with the sudden ending of the greatest conflict in history. Have we forgotten it? No, we shall never forget it. At that time, the eyes of the whole world were turned toward the great struggle in France, which was of so colossal a nature, spread over so wide an area, and affected the property and lives of so many human beings in so many different ways that it is impossible to give an accurate account of the destruction and misery that it caused.

Millions of men were killed or maimed for life and more men, as well as women and children, died from famine, sickness, and want. It has been said that it used up more than one-third of all the wealth of the world; and that estimation looks reasonable, since all of the great powers of the world were involved.

This mighty struggle was confined to the Old World from August 1914 to April 1917, at which time all the patience of America was exhausted by the ruthless acts of Germany, and neutrality was a thing of the past. This circumstance, together with the everlasting determination to uphold the flag, which has never touched the ground, and to safeguard the rights and liberties of the peoples of the world from self-constituted masters plunged the United States into the great light, which continued with its relentless warfare until November 11, 1918.

During the last week of October, 1918, the allied forces made such advances upon the enemy that Germany fully realized that she could no longer stay in the band wagon and on November 8, applied for an armistice, directed by President Wilson, and submitted to its conditions, humiliating as they were, which made her exempt from further attacks. On November 11, 1918, Germany willfully admitted that she was defeated and at the mercy of all, the allied and associated powers signed the Armistice.

TREVOR TO BE CENTER FOR COW AND HORSE MARKET

50,000 Dairy Cows Bought Annually in This Locality

Disclosing the fact that over 50,000 dairy cows are bought in this section each year, E. S. Delaney, 500 dairy cows are bought in this locality each year, E. S. Delaney, Minneapolis, today told of plans maturing to make Trevor, Wis., one of the leading cow-marketing centers in the middle west. The company has been formed, according to Mr. Delaney; it is to be a Maryland corporation and will operate in Wisconsin as a foreign corporation.

Ralph Kennedy, Chicago, 20 years with Woods Bros. Commission company is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Delaney is manager.

Soe Line Co-operates

The Soe Line, in anticipation of the great volume of shipping that will be done when the market gets under way, is putting in $10,000 in improvements at Trevor in sidings and sheds, according to Delaney, who is also authority for the statement that Trevor was selected as the best location for the marketing of dairy cows and horses. Similar markets are in operation at Springfield, Mo., Lancaster, Pa., Springfield, Mass., and Brighton, Mass. Trevor already has quite a reputation as being a shipping point for sheep.

The company plans to hold auctions every week, and the sale of horses will start within the next few weeks, but the marketing of cows

ED BROWN ENTERS RACE FOR SHERIFF

Avon Supervisor Makes Official Announcement
Wednesday

Swelling the list of candidates for sheriff to four, Supervisor E. A. Brown, of Round Lake, yesterday announced his entry into the race. Brown, 11 years supervisor of Avon township where he was born, has been urged for months to seek election as sheriff, he confessed to Antioch friends yesterday. The candidate is best known in the central and western part of the county, but he also has an extensive acquaintance and many friends in Waukegan and along the north shore towns upon whom he counts for support of a major kind.

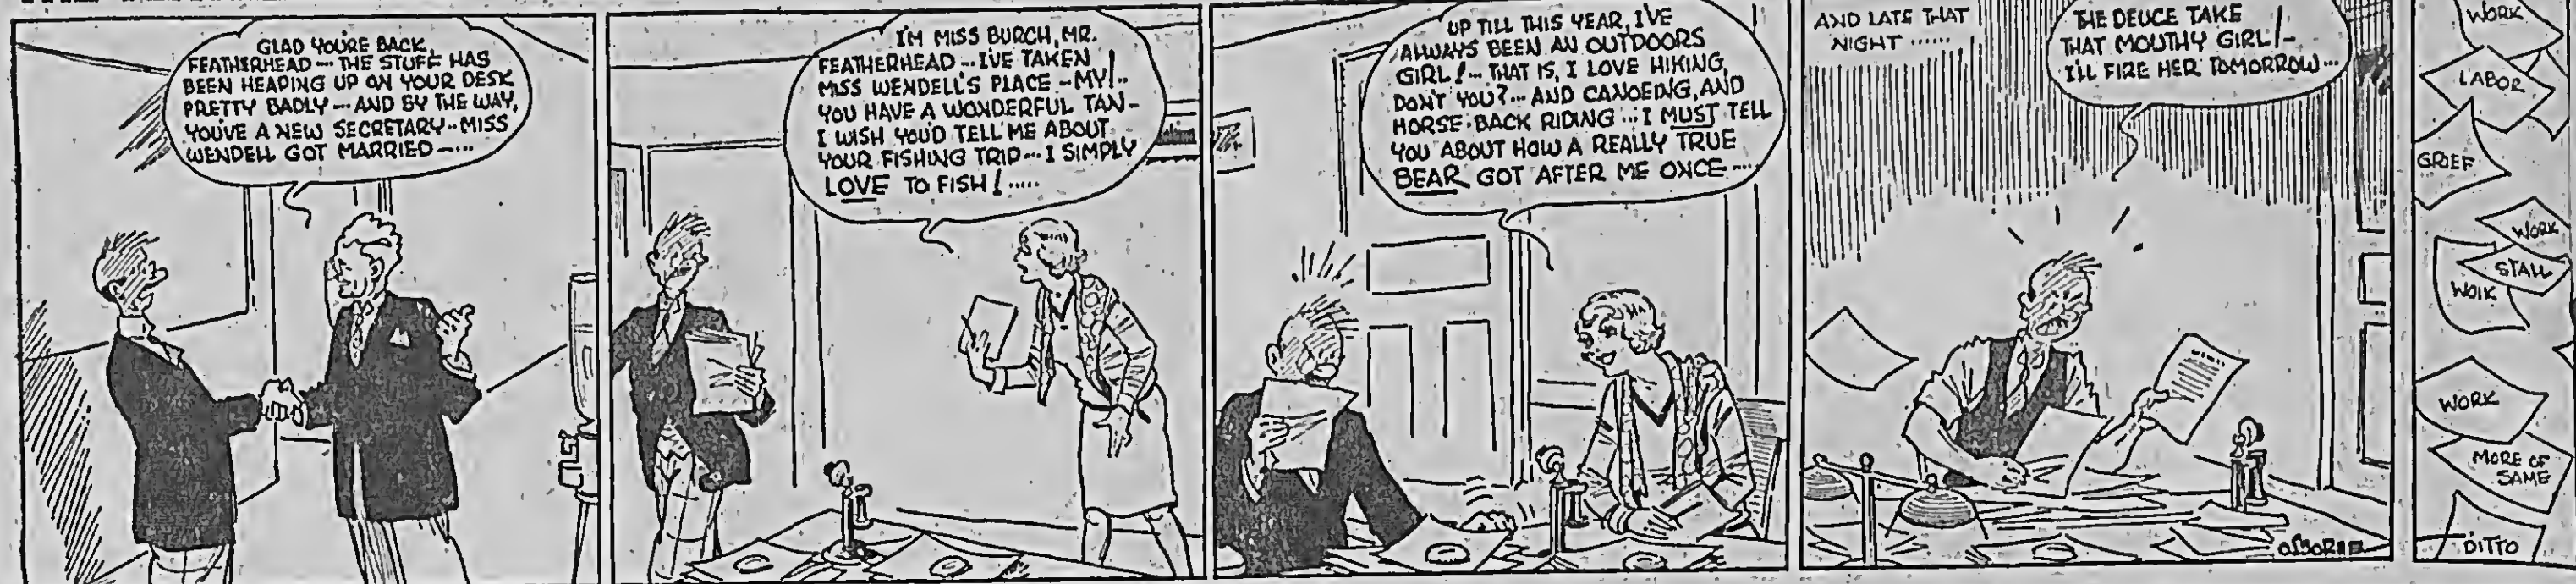

Candidates who have already announced their candidacies are Lester Tiffany, chief of police at Lake Forest, H. A. Doollittle, father of the present sheriff, Elmer Green, former sheriff of the county and until recently warden at Joliet penitentiary. It is also reported that friends of Edwin Alstrom are urging him to become a candidate for re-election.

Several Antioch faculty members will attend a teachers' meeting to be held at the Libertyville high school, Saturday, Nov. 9.

Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Beebe returned home from their northern trip last Friday. They report an enjoyable vacation.

HALF BILLION IN SHADY SECURITIES BARRED FROM STATE

Securities Department Protects Investors, Stratton Says

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 7, 1929—Upwards of half a billion dollars in worthless and questionable securities have been barred from the Illinois investment market since the legislature created the state securities department ten years ago, Secretary of State William J. Stratton, who administers this office, announced today.

In this ten year period the department has qualified over five billion dollars worth of securities for sale. Commenting on this figure, Secretary of State Stratton declared that as times goes on the great wealth of Chicago and Illinois, with its almost unlimited ability to absorb securities, undoubtedly will lead to a larger volume of business in this department.

The securities department, the secretary of state said, through its power over the registration of brokers has been able to drive out of the business of selling securities a great number of crooked individuals and, through the power to require a substantial bond, has protected the public against inexperienced brokers and brokers with little capital investment. He stated that as a result of the efforts of the securities department, the efforts of the securities department bucket shops have almost disappeared.

"The average investor," Secretary of State Stratton said, "has little time and practically no facilities for investigating the merit of securities that are offered. He cannot find out whether claims made by sellers of securities are true or, in fact, whether the seller is a reputable dealer or not. Of course, the securities department would not be justified in trying to substitute its judgment for that of the investor, nor can it properly interfere with the right of a man to speculate and take chances with his money. It can, however, and it does, endeavor to see that the investor is not imposed upon by false representations and it can at least strive to keep dishonest dealers from operating."

Mr. Stratton disclosed that in the current year up to October 1, $650,000 worth of securities were approved for sale by the department; 750 brokers and dealers and about 3500 agents or salesmen were registered.

In conclusion the secretary of state expressed the hope that in the near future more educational work can be carried on to teach the investing public how to protect itself.

GEORGE JOHNSON AIDS IN ARREST OF BURGLAR

Pursues Bandit's Cab in Two Mile Chase Over City Streets

Prompted by a desire to offer his assistance in chasing a bandit who had attempted to rob the Illinois Athletic club, 112 S. Michigan ave., Chicago, George B. Johnson, of Chicago and Antioch, who was attracted by a shot fired at the robber as he and his wife were passing in their automobile, was partly responsible for his capture after pursuing him for a distance of two miles Sunday.

Bandit Points Gun at Porter

The gunman, Thomas Gavin, 28, of 843 Galt avenue, entered the club lobby at 6:45 a. m., at which time Edward Hansen, 61, well-known club porter, was behind the clerk's counter, while the night clerk, Thomas Kelly, 22, was preparing to go off duty. Gavin, whose companion was awaiting him in a cab at the curb, pointed the pump gun at Hansen, after which he ordered him to "hand over everything". As the night watchman heard this remark, he walked into the lobby with his hands above his head, saying, "We haven't much on hand, but I'll give it all to you". Realizing the irresponsibility of the drunken burglar, he opened the cash register and handed over $71 in bills and $13 in silver.

Gunman Dissatisfied With Prag

Dissatisfied with the amount which the night clerk had given him, the holdup man ordered Kelly to open the safe. "I'll give you just three seconds to open that safe," he growled, insisting that only the manager knew the combination, the night clerk leaped and snatched the gun from Gavin's hand. The two men fell to the floor in a desperate struggle which came to an end when Kelly hit the robber over the head with the gun, after the latter had succeeded in loosening several of Kelly's teeth.

Hansen Shoots

Meanwhile, Hansen had secured an automobile from the cashier's cage, following which he fired at Gavin, who disregarded the bullet, even though it passed through his coat.

Upon another attempt to wrestle with Kelly, the burglar noticed that Hansen was trying to get into a position to fire at him without injuring his fellow workman, as the result of which he decided to make his escape. Hansen fired twice, the first bullet hitting Gavin in the back before he stepped into the cab, and the second just escaping the car as they sped away. The last shot was the one which attracted the attention of George Johnson, who immediately offered his assistance in the capture of the men by pursuing them with his automobile. On the way he picked up a policeman and a watchman who, noticing the chase, jumped onto Johnson's running board. After several shots had been fired, Johnson ran the bandit and his companion to the curb at W. Harrison and Forquer streets, where they were captured. It was learned later that both men were cab drivers who had police records. Gavin was removed to the hospital, while his companion, who has been identified as Eddie Dufresne, 45, of 2606 Indiana ave., was taken to the Desplaines police station.

Pioneer Resident of Antioch Succumbs

Following a heart attack, Mrs. Chrysteen Harrison, a pioneer resident of Antioch, died suddenly at her home on Lake street, last night.

The deceased, who was born on March 2, 1843, in Lincoln, New York, is survived by two sons, Charles, of Waukegan, and Andrew, of Antioch, and a daughter, Mrs. Maud Story, of Harrison, Arkansas. Her husband died 14 years ago.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

PECULIAR AILMENT

ATTACKS A. B. JOHNSON

Improvement in the condition of A. B. Johnson, former publisher of the Antioch News, was reported today. A. B. has been unable to move about, but says he feels fine when he remains quiet. Physicians have not been able to diagnose his ailment.

HORACE R. ADAMS

There comes a time in this busy life of ours when we put all worldly things aside and pause for thought upon the seriousness of Life itself.

Last week one of our fellow townsmen left worldly surroundings to begin the Great Experience. On Saturday after learning of his death, friends paused—and thought—thought of the tragedy of it all, of the sorrow and grief to his loved ones, and then, perhaps a little bitterly, of the seeming injustice—why should it have been he—a man in the prime of life rendering useful service, and one who was identified with the progress and development of the community of his choice? Then at the services at the home the comforting words of the minister fell upon hearing ears, and relatives and friends were comforted when reminded that he had left no unworthy deeds on record.

There were very few who knew that Horace R. Adams was troubled with any physical ailment. His death, therefore, was a shock to the community.

If you were privileged to call him "Friend", you were certain of him. He was a friend to man and his deeds of kindness and generosity are unwritten, but innumerable. What a wealth of treasure he has left us! Everyone who came into contact with him is the richer for that contact. Generously he gave; gladly he received. His was the kind of life and the type of service which warrant the benediction, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant".

Horace R. Adams is gone, but never to be forgotten by those who knew him. His life will be remembered as an inspiration to those to whom he was privileged to serve.

TRADITION

How rich is the heritage of the American citizen! Youthful, as nations go, we are rich in tradition and history. As time is measured, it has not been long since America, as a nation, consisted of a few scattered villages and hamlets along the Atlantic seaboard.

Fortunately these humble communities harbored men and women imbued with the pioneer spirit, the spirit that has passed down from generation to generation and made possible the American of today.

These pioneers of yesterday overcame unbelievable obstacles to found a nation that should one day span a continent. Peril and hardship were their daily lot, but they fought through for the sake of their dream, that we who come after them should have security and prosperity.

These pioneers of yesterday have endowed every nook and corner of America with a wealth of tradition. There is not a community in our land that is not indebted to them, and we who now enjoy the fruits of their labor and vision owe them the debt of completing the work they so well began. The spirit of the pioneer calls out of the past for us to carry on.

Where better can we start than right here in Antioch? Here, as elsewhere, the civic founders dreamed of an ideal community, and for their sake and the sake of the ones who come after us, we must do our share.

Note the challenge in the Community Development page found elsewhere in this issue, made possible by our loyal business and professional firms. It is a message worthy of our utmost consideration.

THE WINGED POSTMAN

The amount of mail that flies from the nation's capital to all parts of the country is 4 times as large as it was a year ago. Furthermore, the bulging pouches of mail grow more numerous and bulging every month. In round statistics, mail planes now fly 50,000 miles daily across 41 states and into Canada, Mexico, and Central America. These figures given by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce represent air ports all over the United States, which alone has 30,000 miles of airways.

A reduction in the air postal rate from 5 to 2 cents has been suggested, even though the deficit in the Post-office department was largely attributed to loss of money on air mail business to the point where the government will find it profitable to make contracts with air companies on the basis of space used as is done in the case of railroads. This would mean no loss of revenue to Uncle Sam.

MERGERS TO BENEFIT THE HOUSEWIFE

In this day and age, with automobiles, clothes and other commodities produced under the principle of mass production and distribution, it may seem that the housewife, dealing with food, the most basic of commodities, has been neglected in the movement to provide a higher standard of products at a lower unit cost.

Now this neglect is being remedied. Recognizing this situation, a manufacturer of a well known table specialty has purchased more than 40 non-competitive food products and will manufacture and distribute them nationally in the hope that the result will be better standardized goods that can be sold for less.

This plan seems logical. Food we must have and to have necessities and luxuries provided by an organization with unlimited facilities should assure a maximum quality at a minimum price.

DON'T BURN YOUR FINGERS

Discussing the matter of investing funds in securities, the Denver Mining Record, Denver, Colorado, says: "Get the facts before you buy and base your judgment upon these facts. Get the facts and you will be able to make proper selection. The laws today make it possible for the investor to secure facts upon which to base his judgment".

Growth of modern stock exchanges has undoubtedly been responsible for making facts available to the public, which would otherwise be unobtainable except to the privileged few. Seek advice from reputable sources and don't burn your fingers.

"SALES APPEAL" AND SAFETY

In the last two or three years a new factor has entered into the "sales appeal" for automobiles—Safety. This is a logical trend. As traffic congestion grows and the accident danger increases, the motorist becomes concerned with the strength and sturdiness of the automobile he drives.

There have been many major steps taken in automobile construction in recent years. Better brakes, non-shatterable glass, lower center of gravity have become standard. The all-steel body is an outstanding feature of motor car safety.

Safety in all things is our modern watchword. And nowhere has safety progress been more pronounced than in the automobile.

THE HIGHWAY AGE

Historians of the future, looking back on the first quarter of the twentieth century, may well consider it the "Highway Age".

In 1900 paved roads were almost unknown. Uneven dirt or gravel surfaces were the best even urban localities had to offer. And in rural districts the suffering farmer struggled through mud holes and over roads indistinguishable from cow paths.

The change made in little more than a quarter-century has been epochal. From coast to coast, broad, smooth highways stretch, an invitation to the business man and tourist. In progressive agricultural localities old gravel and macadam roads are being given a waterproof surface with oil or asphaltic materials at modern cost, thus modernizing old roads and providing a feeder for main highways.

Of all the tremendous progress of this century, none has been more pronounced than that made in road building. The person with an automobile can range hundreds of miles in a day. The result has been a lessening of the provincial spirit and a breaking of barriers between farms, cities, states and even nations.

a group of friends from Melleny at a Halloween party at the Avery cottage on Cedar Lake Saturday evening.

Mrs. Fred Burke was in Waukegan last week Wednesday, where she slipped on the wet pavement and fractured a bone in her arm. She and her daughter, Miss Beulah, are with her brother, G. P. Manzer, for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Young, who recently returned from Africa, where they have been working in the interests of the Presbyterian Missionary board, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Weber, Jr., early this week. Mrs. Young will be better remembered by Lake Villa people as Helen Welker, a former teacher here. She has gone to Missouri for a visit with her people before they locate in either Chicago or Waukegan.

The pupils of the Junior department of the Sunday school had a Halloween party at the church Friday afternoon, with the teachers, Mrs. Henry Nader, Miss Alice Seeger, and Miss Mary Korr in charge.

Joe McCann, who has been in the Lake County General hospital, for an appendicitis operation, returned to his home last week and is recovering nicely.

The Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Hamlin Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlee Gullette have moved out from Waukegan to the Ben Hamlin cottage on Cedar avenue.

Halloween was rather quiet in the village except for a few pranks by the younger generation. All the store windows on Cedar avenue had a good cleaning the following day.

To remove the odor from kettles and saucepans in which onions have been cooked, put wood-ashes, and soda, potato, or lye into them, fill them with water, and let them stand on the stove until the liquid boils; then wash the containers in hot soapy water, and rinse well.

To take spots from wash goods, rub them with the yoke of an egg before washing.

Flowers may be kept very fresh over night if they are excluded from the air. To do this, wrap them thoroughly, put them into a damp box, and cover with wet cotton or newspaper; then place them in a cool place. Flowers will also live longer if you put a little saltwater in the water you use for bouquets.

WILMOT HOLY NAME CHURCH TO HAVE MISSIONJack Kavanaugh Wins
Highest Place in State
Judging Contest

Starting this Wednesday evening at 7:30, Father, Gerhart, Milwaukee, will conduct a mission at the Holy Name church. Mass and instructions will be held at seven each morning and the evening sermon and benediction will be at 7:30. There will be a low mass at eight Sunday morning and a high mass at 7. The mission will close Sunday evening.

Word was received Wednesday that Jack Kavanaugh was the highest individual in the state in the cheese judging contest held at Madison two weeks ago. A number of the agriculture students, accompanied by Mr. Schurr, were in Madison for the agriculture judging contests.

Mr. and Mrs. James Carey were in Brighton, Thursday, for the funeral services of John Thom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Thom.

Honorary McGuire and friend, from Chicago, spent Saturday and Sunday at the McGuire cottage. The girls were on a hunting trip.

The next P. T. A. meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 12. The program will be on music and recreation. Printed details will be sent out by the pupils later. Mr. Nord, Y. M. C. A. secretary for Racine and Kenosha counties, has been secured to speak on "Recreation"; Miss Thassan will give a short talk on the use of the library for recreational purposes; and Chris Nelson, director of the school music and vocal teacher, is to sing two numbers. Other vocal numbers will be given by Grace Carey. The members of the committee would like to have as many attend as possible as they have spent much time and effort in organizing the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. John Raush entertained 12 of her friends at a Bunco party Thursday afternoon. Refreshments were served following the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Albrecht entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Richmond, over the week-end.

Catherine, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Selear, Bristol, was baptized by Rev. J. Braaky at the Holy Name church, Sunday. Sponsors were Catherine Raush and George Hilbert.

Mr. and Mrs. Olan Jackson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell and son, Selon, were Sunday dinner and supper guests at the Walter Cairns home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rott, Chicago, George Kantler and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Darby and daughter, Winnetka, called on Dr. and Mrs. Darby Sunday.

Miss Olive Hope gave a Halloween party for her little people in the Primary department of the Wilmot school, Friday afternoon. The children were in costume; some were dressed as ghosts, others masked, and one costumed came as a maid. Games were played and refreshments served.

Eugene Frank was in Madison over the week-end and attended the Wisconsin game.

Wilbur Lewis, Milwaukee, spent Monday and Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burroughs.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynne Sherman and children were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lent, Genoa City.

Rhoda Jedele, Laura Burandt, Florence Flegel, Arthur Flegel, Norman Jedele, and Edmund Buenger attended the Wisconsin-Purdue game, at Madison, Saturday.

Sally Ann's
Adventures

at Her Home

Do your mamma's ever tell you bedtime stories before you go to sleep, boys and girls? Well, this is the one that Sally Ann's mamma told her last night:

Little Saw-whet Owl was very much puzzled. He wanted to know just the very best place in which to make his nest-home, for Little Saw-whet Owl is the smallest of the owls and he is very timid. Do you want to know why he has such a queer name? Just listen, my girls, there, do you hear his voice? His song is not a pleasant one. It sounds like the sawing of a log.

Then Little Saw-whet happened to remember his wise old grandfather, Mr. Night Owl. So he decided to ask grandpa to advise him. "Where is the best place for a nest?" repeated Grandpa Owl. "Well, experience is best teacher. Let us call together all the birds from far and near, and we may learn from their experience."

"So the birds were summoned and questioned. 'Who knows the best place?' cried Grandpa Owl. 'Who Who?' The Eagle came forward, for he was the king of the birds and must speak first. 'The cliff away up among those mountains, you see so far away in the distance,' said the King Eagle in his slow stately manner, 'is by far the best site one could wish.' 'The cliff is too steep for anyone to climb to its top, and from my rocky top, I can see the plains and the valley spread out far, far below me. It is a beautiful sight and there one can live in freedom and undisturbed'."

But Little Saw-whet replied, "Oh, King Eagle, that is certainly the place for you, but I fear that I could never reach that cliff."

"No, indeed," chirped a cheerful little sparrow, almost under Saw-whet's feet, for he was perched on a limb and the sparrow was hopping in the grass below. "Of course that cliff is out of the question," Mrs. Sparrow chirped on, "but see how nicely I hide my nest away among the grasses in the field? You see one could not tell where my home was hidden, for my brown feathers do not show among the grasses. That's the place for you."

(You will hear what the other birds had to say next week, boys and girls).

"For more than a year I was extremely nervous and my general health was all run down," said Mrs. Ella J. Williams, 612 West Calhoun street, Springfield, Ill. "My stomach and liver were in very bad shape. Spots appeared on my face and I kept losing weight and vitality. I was badly discouraged over repeated failure in my efforts to find the proper medicine."

"I had read and heard a lot about Konjola and decided to put it to the test. Almost immediately I could feel this medicine at work. My stomach and liver yielded first and next my nerves became calm and quiet. I am eating and sleeping well, and now that I am relieved of all worry over my health, I am gaining in weight and strength. Konjola proved to be the medicine I always needed and I recommend it highly."

LOCAL REBEKAHS OBSERVE CHARTER MEMBERS' NIGHT

With two charter members, Mrs. Mary Cribb and Mrs. Rebecca Burnett, filling the same stations that they did 27 years ago, when the organization was instituted, the members of the local Rebekah lodge observed Charter Members' night and 25th anniversary at the Woodman hall, Friday night.

By way of showing recognition to the five charter members of the organization who are living and also to those who have been members for the last 25 years, Mrs. Grace Balfstow, of Waukegan, who is vice-president of the Rebekah State Assembly of Illinois, presented to them pins purchased by the local lodge. Mrs. Balfstow was introduced and presented with a bouquet of flowers and a gift. Those who received pins are: Mrs. Mary Cribb, Mrs. Rebecca Burnett, Mrs. Mary Runyard, Mrs. Ida Osmond, Miss Edith Colegrove, and Mrs. C. B. Harrison, who was not able to be present. Mrs. Cribb, Mrs. Burnett and Mrs. Harrison were also presented with bouquets of flowers. Mrs. Mary Runyard, president of District No. 3, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Waukegan; and Miss Goldie Davis, secretary, were introduced.

The hall was made physically attractive by beautiful Halloween decorations and baskets of flowers, and a beautiful cafeteria lunch was served at 10:30.

P. T. A. HAS REGULAR MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

The members of the Parent-Teachers association had a regular meeting at the grade school Monday night. CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 3.

The Golden Text was, "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Ecclesiastes 12:14).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God" (Ephesians 6:11, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite. In order that sin and mortality may be put off" (p. 265).

RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS PRINT BOOKS FOR BLIND

One of the most appealing services that is carried forward by women volunteers under the American Red Cross is that of transcribing popular and scientific books into Braille for reading by the blind. This work was started at Evergreen hospital, where blind veterans of the World War were sent after the Armistice.

The Red Cross now has 1,155 volunteer Braille transcribers, and last year they produced 442 titles to 1,849 volumes, or 175,000 pages of Braille. The majority of the books go to the Library of Congress and public libraries throughout the country, although some of the books go to schools for the blind and, in a few instances, text books are transcribed for some individual scholar in order to help him complete his course in some study.

The work is supported from the Red Cross Roll Call for members which occurs each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

AIRPLANES DROP TONS OF FOOD DURING FLOOD

Army, Navy and Alabama National Guard airplanes delivered twenty-five tons of supplies furnished by the American Red Cross to flood refugees who were completely cut off from any other aid, during the serious floods in four southeastern States early this spring.

The three services made an average of fifty flights a day, delivering medicine, food, clothing and blankets. Most of the supplies were dropped to the refugees who were isolated on hill tops and high ground, by the flood waters.

Naval aviators made a total of 115 flights during the flood period, emptying 15,000 miles. Observation planes also reported by radio where marooned refugees could be located, and a magnificent program of co-operation with the Red Cross relief forces was carried forward by all three aviation services.

PLANS ARE SET FOR CHANNEL LAKE CLUB DINNER-DANCE NOV. 15

The invitations are out for the dinner-dance which President E. J. Guedinger is giving for the Young People of the Channel Lake Country club. It is anticipated that there will be a large attendance at this early winter gathering, and keen interest is being shown in the event which is scheduled for Friday evening, Nov. 15, at the Knickerbocker Hotel, East Walton Place, (opposite the Drake Hotel).

If there are any young people between the ages of 15 and 35 who have failed to receive an invitation, it is hoped they will communicate with the chairman, Miss Brooke Phillips, 5917 Winthrop ave. Phone Ardmore 2945, as President Guedinger is most anxious that no one shall be overlooked.

Richard E. Schmidt has as his house guests ever Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sandell, Mrs. Lillie Britton, Miss Tillman, and Mr. Frank Brunns. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ladd were also guests just for the day on Sunday.

Miss Frances Ladd, who has been a resident of San Diego, California, for the last two years; is expecting to return permanently to her home in Chicago this week, and will be with her family at the Knickerbocker Hotel.

RED CROSS EXPENDS EIGHT MILLIONS FOR RELIEF IN DISASTER

Year Just Closed Put Heavy Task on Society—120 Calls for Help Were Met.

An unusually large number of disasters in the United States and its insular possessions have required assistance from the American Red Cross during the year just closed. The organization sent emergency relief workers to the scenes of 120 tornadoes, floods, fires and other types of catastrophes and expended $8,020,000 to relief and rehabilitation of the victims.

Calls for aid came from eleven other nations in which earthquakes, floods and other problems caused distress to large populations, and the Red Cross sent $76,300 to help in relieving the suffering.

The catastrophe causing the greatest loss of life and most widespread devastation was the West Indies hurricane of September, 1928, in which more than 2,000 lives were lost in Florida, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands. A relief fund of $5,853,725.61 was contributed by the public, followed by a proclamation by the President of the United States, to which the Red Cross added $50,000 from its own treasury, and the society was enabled to give relief to more than 700,000 persons.

In the early Spring, river floods in the southeastern states cost a heavy loss to many persons, 76,000 inhabitants being affected in four states. The Red Cross assisted 4,383 families, approximately 23,000 persons, with food, clothing, temporary housing, food for stock and seed for replanting.

In all, thirty-eight states were visited by calamities during the year, affecting 364 counties. Twenty-eight counties were devastated twice by storms, fires and floods.

Red Cross expended $434,000 from its treasury in giving relief in these disasters, and at one time had as many as 120 disaster relief workers, nurses and other representatives in the field.

Funds for this relief work are obtained in the annual roll call for members, which occurs from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 23. Only once a year—during this period of Roll Call—does the Red Cross ask public support to carry on its many activities.

COFFEE CROP AIDED BY RED CROSS IN ISLANDS

Disaster relief given following the West Indies hurricane which struck Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Florida, as well as other islands in the Caribbean Sea, presented one of the largest tasks yet undertaken by the American Red Cross. In Florida, where 1,810 lives were lost, the Red Cross aided 41,236 persons. In Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, where the loss of life was not so great, but where the devastation was almost complete, the Red Cross aided 731,712 persons.

Destruction of the coffee plants was the gravest loss, and the Red Cross aided in rehabilitating this industry by employing 67,000 natives to clear the coffee land, so that replanting would go forward immediately, thus providing work and wages for thousands.

LABOR HEAD URGES SUPPORT OF RED CROSS

"Invariably it is the masses of the people which suffer most when disasters occur," stated William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, recently.

"Because they suffer most and because of their helplessness, the ministrations of the Red Cross organization take on added significance and importance. No doubt many lives among these particular groups are saved through the prompt service which this organization gives."

"Because the American Federation of Labor appreciates this fact, we have supplemented the appeal of the American Red Cross at each Roll Call period for memberships from the great mass of working men and women and their families."

"The continued service of the American Federation of Labor in this most humane and unselfish work will be most cheerfully rendered."

Mr. Green is a member of the Board of Incorporators of the American Red Cross.

NURSES ENROLLED WITH RED CROSS FOR SERVICE

Enrolled with the Nursing Service of the American Red Cross at Washington are 49,000 nurses, qualified under the society's regulations, who may be summoned to service in time of disaster or other emergency. From the Red Cross enrollment were assigned 20,000 nurses in the World War. These Red Cross nurses are the standing reserve of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps of the United States, and are also called upon for service in other governmental health services.

Little St. Eustatius Island in the Dutch West Indies gave refuge to American ships during the Revolution. The hurricane of last September struck the island, causing heavy loss. The American Red Cross was glad to send a small cash relief fund in remembrance of the historic friendship of the island folk for this republic.

Antioch People Return After Spending Three Weeks Touring Western States

By Agnes Blenfang

Attracted by the splendor and charm of the West and the beckoning hand of kinship, Mrs. D. A. Williams, Mrs. Elsie Schroeder, Mrs. R. D. Williams, Miss Ruth Williams, and Betty Lou Williams got into a huddle, unanimously agreed, packed the bags into the rested car, said goodbye to the home folks, and touched off the works under the hood—they were on their way westward.

After they had digested specific directions outlined by the Chicago Motor club, they set out by way of less beaten highways for Salina, Kansas. The first touch of metropolitan life which they experienced after they had crossed the boundary of the "Garden of Eden," was St. Louis, at which place they crossed Missouri's bustling stream. The Houlton State is noted for its lofty hills, its delightful dunes, its beautiful streams, and its inviting recreational atmosphere.

The second night of their trip they gambled on a tourist home at Sweet Springs, dubbed "Pinkiepark," where they found everyone congenial and hospitable. Anything that Greenwich village could suggest was there and had the food fashioner been a writer, she would have been the author of the long-awaited "Great American novel."

At Kansas City, they crossed the Missouri river for the third time. The drive along the Paseo (Kansas City parkway) was exceedingly delightful, even though they were merely floating with the traffic current. All kinds of cars came together—Packards, Cadillacs, Fords, Buicks, taxis, and busses—they were all together in one rigid maelstrom. "Kansas is a beautiful state," remarked Mrs. D. A. Williams enthusiastically. "It is level and a great deal like some parts of Illinois." She was deeply impressed with the hundreds and thousands of acres of winter wheat which are growing there. By way of explanation of the destructive floods which Kansas experiences each year, she said that the rivers there are so small that they overflow after the slightest rainfall. In many instances, it is necessary for railroad companies to build canals in order to provide outlets for excessive water. "The weather was so beautiful all the way," remarked Mrs. Williams with a smile. "It seemed almost like going to Florida." They had the comfort of rolling over, de luxe concrete highways as far as Topeka, where they struck so-called "all-weather" roads.

Mrs. R. D. Williams and Betty Lou left the party at Salina for Wichita, Kansas, where her mother and sister live. The rest spun north to Smith Center, the geographical center of the United States. Here Dodgecous rested with a sigh of satisfaction, while the folks visited with a niece of the elder Mrs. Williams. Her husband, by the way, a veteran newspaperman, is a frequent contributor to the Chicago Tribune.

The next halt, as indicated in their itinerary, was Jennings, Kansas, where Mrs. Williams' brother-in-law and oldest sister, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Munson, live. They were pioneer residents of that city, moving there from Salem, Wisconsin, many years ago. As Mrs. Munson is now totally blind, she insisted that Mrs. Williams sang songs and talked, discussing ancient, medieval, and modern history. Spilt infinitives may have been used as excuses for pauses. As her brother-in-law was a great pal of John and Jake Drom's father, he was very interested in the Drom family. When he asked, "What does Jake Drom do now?" Mrs. Williams replied, "He drives by our house every day or two and he never goes by without speaking to me." "It kept my memory racked to tell him what all the Droms were doing," said Mrs. Williams with a smile. Their visit to the Munson home brought to light even more incidents which have local color. While conversing with his sister-in-law, one day, Mr. Munson, who is a civil war veteran, said, "There was an old soldier back in Antioch who once stood over there on that knoll near the cemetery and shot 95 ducks in one afternoon. I wonder who that could have been?" Mrs. Williams released him from his state of anxiety by informing him that the man of whom he spoke was none other than the father of Mrs. Maude Sabla and Mrs. D. B. Sabla, of Antioch. Just think of it, you sportsmen, 95 ducks in one afternoon! While in the West the party drove to Clayton, Kansas, which is just a short distance from Jennings, to visit Mrs. Rex Bonser's sister and family.

As the result of her visit with her blind sister, Mrs. Williams said that she had a message which she would like to convey to all mothers, the gist of which is that children should be taught rhymes and songs when they are small, so that if they ever do become afflicted as her sister is, they will have food for thought and amusement. In commenting on that suggestion, Mrs. Williams said, "Whoever is teaching their children songs and rhymes is doing a great work. The songs of childhood and youth will stay with one as long as life lasts."

At North Platte, Nebraska, they visited four generations of Mrs. Williams' brother's family. On their way there from Jennings, they drove through McCook, Nebraska, to call on John Dupre's brother-in-law, from North La Platte they drove to Smith Center.

The party then went back to Salina to meet Mrs. R. D. Williams and Betty Lou, who had a gay time attending bridge parties and various other social functions given in their honor. Instead of returning via of St. Louis, they turned off at St. Charles, Missouri, and crossed the Mississippi river at Alton. Between St. Charles and Alton, they passed fishing grounds, hunting grounds, and lotus beds. "The paddlers" on the Mississippi are just as beautiful as those on the Hudson," commented Mrs. Williams. The last stop which they made before arriving in Antioch was at Springfield, where they visited the Lincoln Monument.

AID FOR VETERANS IS RED CROSS PLEDGE

Service and Ex-Service Men Are Helped in All Problems.

Service to World War veterans in hospital, for able-bodied veterans, and for dependent families of both called for expenditures of $738,000 by the American Red Cross during the year just ended. In addition, Red Cross Chapters spent $1,965,000 in veteran relief, and also for men still in service.

Although eleven years have passed since the Armistice, there remain 25,599 disabled and sick veterans of the World War in hospitals, and the peak of the number who will require hospitalization is not expected by Veterans Bureau authorities to be reached until 1917. For these men, the Red Cross must continue its service of providing recreation and comforts, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the Red Cross.

"Under its Charter from Congress, the Red Cross is required to maintain service for veterans of wars and for the men still in the service," Mr. Fieser said. "The funds for this work come from the annual roll call membership fees. In addition to the sum spent in maintaining contact with the veterans, the Red Cross expended $308,000 in its service to the men still in the regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps. The society and a majority of its 3,500 chapters handle claims for these men for insurance, compensation and other benefits they are entitled to under the law, and also where necessary arrange to provide for dependent families of the men.

"Red Cross workers are maintained in forty-eight Veterans Bureau hospitals, as well as in all regular Army and Navy hospitals, whose duty it is to supervise recreational facilities for the patients, and to provide small comforts. In the Army and Navy hospitals, the workers also do social service for the patients. These tasks also are performed at all Army Posts and Navy Ports by Red Cross workers, and in addition Red Cross representatives to handle claims are established at the majority of Veterans Bureau regional offices."

Mr. Fieser urged that all citizens enroll in the Roll Call, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 25, in order to aid in supporting this work.

NEW CROPS IN FLOODED STATES BRING PROSPERITY

The introduction of new habits of planting, following the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, has brought added prosperity to farmers in many of the Mississippi Delta counties, according to Red Cross officials.

Almost every cabin has a fine vegetable garden, whereas cotton formerly grew right to the doorstep, the Red Cross states. The home demonstration and agricultural agents have followed up the project inaugurated by the Red Cross, immediately after the flood of 1927, with very gratifying success. There is a large acreage in corn whereas formerly cotton was the one crop. Alfalfa has gained a firm foothold, and the growing of this crop is bringing good financial returns from the three or four cuttings each year. Live stock also is showing improvement due to these new crops.

Everything considered, the Delta sections which escaped a disastrous problem in the Spring of 1927 are in a prosperous condition, as a result of the follow-up and rehabilitation by the American Red Cross.

RED CROSS HONOR FLAG GOES TO NEW HAMPSHIRE

The honor flag, given annually to the State which enrolls the greatest percentage of its population as member of the American Red Cross, went this year to New Hampshire. The decision was so close between New Hampshire and Vermont that it hung in the balance for a time. California ranked third in the honor list and Connecticut fourth.

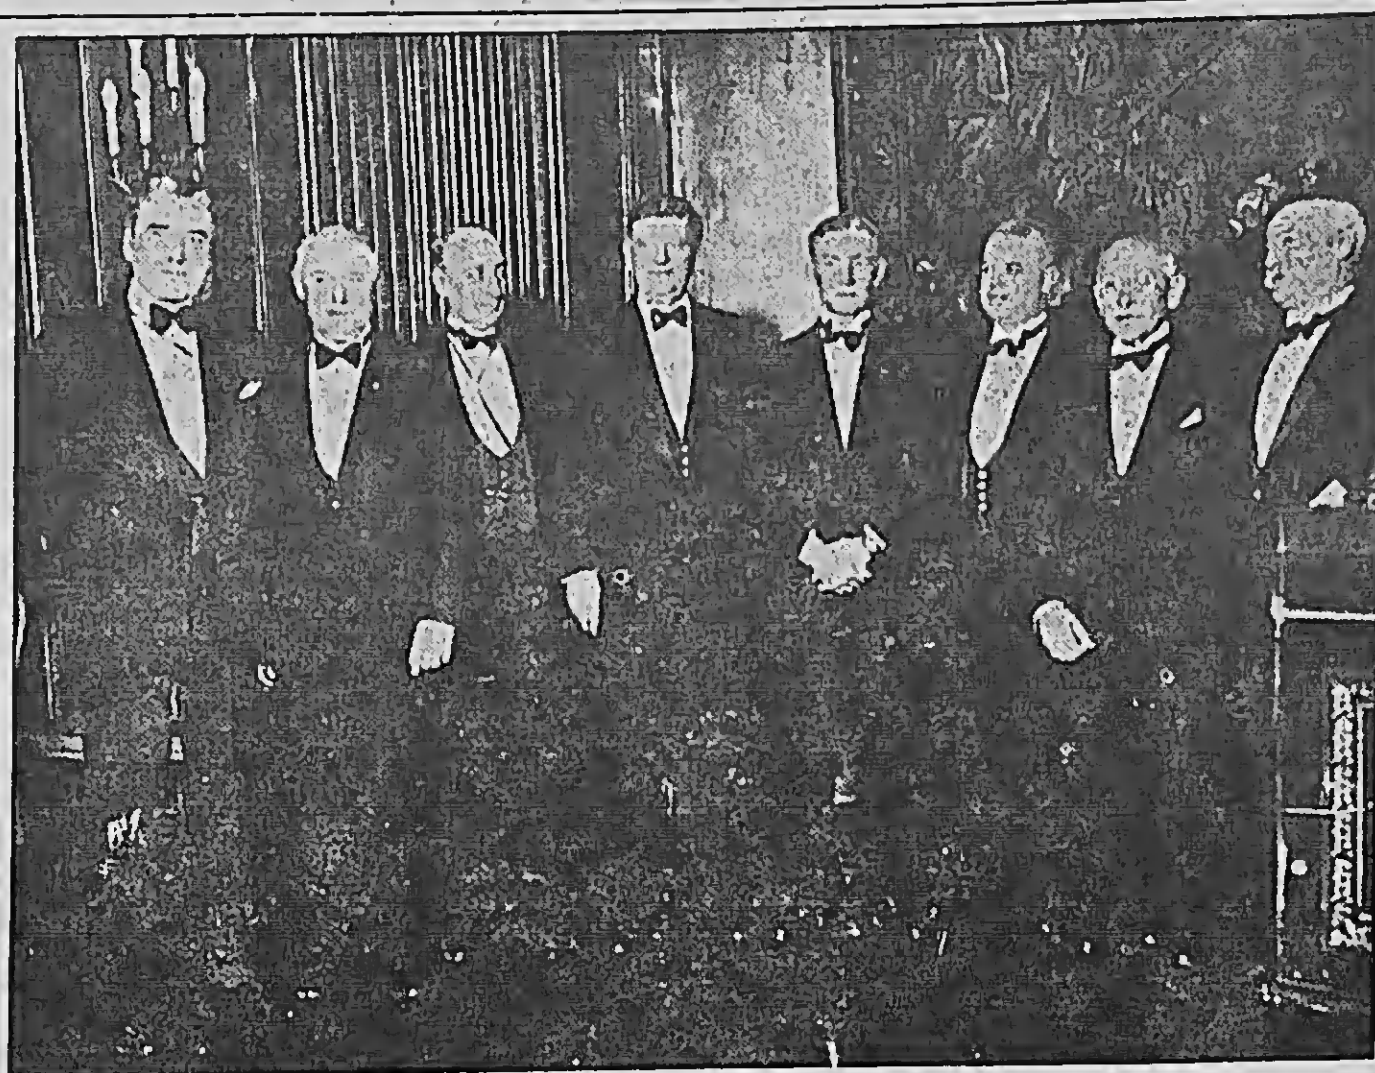

A final tabulation of figures of the 1928 Roll Call showed a nation-wide membership of 4,127,946. The banner rests with New Hampshire, where it is hung in the State House, until the 1929 Roll Call—held between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day—is completed and new figures available for the 1929 winner.

FIVE RED CROSS CAMPS HOUSE FLOOD REFUGEES

A total of 27,791 persons were maintained by the American Red Cross in camps or in their own homes in the three States of Alabama, Georgia and Florida, following the disastrous floods of early last Spring. Five camps were organized, of which four were in Alabama and one in Florida. Small temporary camps were set up in various places in addition to these, but the persons not sheltered in the five main camps soon were able to return home or to friends and relatives.

Red Cross nurses were at all five camps, assisting the State health authorities in care of the sick and in inoculating against epidemics.

World's Fair Officials Face Big Task

When Chicago World's Fair officials announced that the first of buildings and exhibits might be opened to public in 1931. Left to right: Louis J. Behan and Philip S. Graver, South Park Commissioners; Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress; Edward J. Kelly, president of South Park board; General Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to Great Britain and chairman of fair's finance committee; Michael L. Igoe, South Park Commissioner; Julius Rosenwald, one of fair's largest guarantors; and John Bain, South Park Commissioner.

CHURCHMEN ASK SUPPORT OF RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Leading churchmen of the nation have joined in asking public support of the annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross. Two distinguished leaders who have sent messages to their congregations all over the country are quoted, as follows:

"I plead for an extension of our Red Cross membership until we can call a roll of every adult American," stated the Most Reverend Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore. "I would like to see the children listed in the organization by their parents. I plead for it because of the spiritual reaction I visualize in our millions of contributing members."

"As president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, I bespeak for the Roll Call of the American Red Cross the fullest cooperation of all the churches in the constituency of the Council," writes Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council. "I cannot imagine that there is any minister who will not be grateful for the opportunity to call the attention of his people to the work of the Red Cross and to urge them to enroll in its membership."

The American Red Cross expended $3,659,627.24 in disaster relief work in the United States and its insular possessions and in eleven other countries during the year ending June 30, 1929.

WOMEN KNIT AND SEW FOR RED CROSS RELIEF

Volunteers Aid Through Motor and Canteen Corps—Send Gifts to Service Men.

Recalling the days of the World War, many women still make pajamas and other hospital garments, many knit sweaters, and more than 2,500, 900 surgical dressings were rolled by volunteer workers for the American Red Cross Chapters all over the nation, in the year just closed.

The hospital garments are given to veterans and the surgical dressings go to civilian or Veterans' Bureau hospitals, or wherever needed. Many Chapters also maintain well stocked closets of surgical dressings and garments, in order to be prepared should a disaster strike their communities.

Volunteer workers make children's clothing and layettes which are distributed in time of major catastrophes. The Motor Corps of Red Cross women and the Canteen Service, also first created during the World War, still are maintained by many Red Cross chapters. Last year the various Motor Corps, some with automobiles, answered about 30,000 calls, and the Canteens served more than 20,000 persons. They were especially active where floods or forest fires or other catastrophes called for feeding refugees or firemen engaged in active work fighting disaster.

Another activity of women volunteers is that of filling Christmas bags

—small cretonne ditty bags—to send to soldiers and sailors who are stationed at posts or ports abroad. More than 40,000 of these are sent each year for distribution to the Americans at Christmas time.

MILLBURN CHURCH MAKES PLANS FOR HOME-COMING

School-Children Make High Monthly Averages In Spelling

Millburn church is planning for its second Annual Home-coming to be held November 17, at 10:30 o'clock. Invitations have been sent to former residents and there will be three-minute talks from many of these on "Memories of Millburn". There will be special music, and flowers will be given to the twelve oldest persons attending. Let every family in the community plan to be there and bring a guest with him.

The following pupils had an average of 100 per cent for the month of October in Spelling: John Vernon Edwards, Carl Bruckner, Mildred Bauman, Robert Denman, Harold Bonner, Rose Mary Larsen, Clarence Hauser. Average 90 per cent and over in History: Harold Sloenn, Helen Bauman, Howard Bonner, Lyman Bonner, John Vernon Edwards, Edwin Johannesen, Harold Dehue, Earl Bauman, and Phyllis Torfin.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wetzel and children, Chicago, attended the bazaar and remained over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson.

Mrs. Mary Harvey, Grayslake, visited her brother, Geo. Edwards, last Friday.

Mrs. Jessie Lowe, who has spent the summer in Scotland, returned to her home this week.

The Millburn young people attended a masquerade party at York House Saturday night.

The annual bazaar held Nov. 1, was a great success, and $300 was realized for the church treasury.

The P. T. A. met at the schoolhouse Tuesday evening.

Mrs. S. W. Ames, Gurnee, spent Tuesday with Mrs. R. J. Bonner.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Gallger, Waukegan, gave an interesting talk Sunday evening about Hawaii; his illustrations were taken from stereopticon pictures and engravings.

Next time you need fuel to heat your home, order Waukegan Koppers Coke.

If you do not know the size Waukegan Koppers Coke needed for your heating plant, just ask your dealer to send a fuel expert to tell you. No charge for this service.

Chicago

shows 104% increase in EIGHTS

Facts just obtained from 23 representative American cities indicate conclusively that the motoring public prefer the Eight to all other engine types. Take Chicago as an example: for the first eight months of 1929, new cars with list prices above $1,000 showed a 104 per cent increase in Eights and a 12 per cent decrease in Sixes!

At the famous Paris Salon this fall, 44 makes of eight cylinder cars were exhibited, compared with 27 last year. Studebaker, world's largest producer of Eights, two years ago initiated this era of the inexpensive Eight with the champion Studebaker President which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes.

And today, at customary six-cylinder prices, you can choose from three great lines of Studebaker Eights—holders of eleven world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined.

Get a smart, new, thrifty Studebaker Eight—backed by 77 years of manufacturing integrity—and your car will be worth more in the trade-in markets of the future.

CALLS ON RED CROSS INCREASE; RESPONSE TO ROLL CALL URGED

Society's Activities Reach Millions
Each Year—Chairman Payne Asks Generous Support in Membership.

Disaster relief work, service to disabled veterans and their families, public health work and its many other activities engaged expenditures of $11,064,000 by the American Red Cross for the year ended June 30, 1929, according to the annual report of the organization.

This work by the Red Cross is supported by the annual Roll Call for members, which is held from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 28.

Directing attention to the heavy expenditures by the Red Cross during the past year, and to the fact that the organization was called upon for assistance in 120 disasters in the United States and its insular possessions, Judge John Barton Payne, the chairman, said:

"The Red Cross is a volunteer society, supported by its membership, and belongs to all of the citizens. While it is a semi-governmental agency in that the President of the United States is its president, and one third of its governing board are representatives of Government departments, yet it receives no financial support from the Government.

"Funds for our work for war veterans and their families, for carrying on disaster relief, for our varied health activities, the life saving and first aid work and our many other activities, all are derived from the membership fee. The public is asked only once each year—at the Annual Roll Call—to join in this support of the Red Cross."

The Red Cross expended an average of $330,000 per year in the past seven years, in disaster relief work from its own treasury, statements show. The work for world war veterans also has caused heavy expenditures.

HEALTH PRESERVATION IS AIM OF RED CROSS

Society Employs Rural Public Health Nurses—Teaches First Aid and Life Saving.

A comprehensive, nation-wide program to prevent illness, and to save lives through proper nursing care and advanced methods of life saving and first aid is fostered by the American Red Cross.

The organization is the largest employer of rural public health nurses in the United States, through its chapters. This policy of the Red Cross is to encourage its chapters to extend the public health nursing service, where leadership in this field is not taken by some other agency in the community.

The Red Cross health and life saving campaign embraces the following: preservation of health through skilled nursing care; prevention of loss of life in accidents; prevention of illness through cleanliness in the home and knowledge of methods of home care of the sick and raising the standard of health and physical efficiency through proper nutrition.

During the year just closed, more than 42,000 certificates have been issued in the Red Cross course in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, and since the courses were inaugurated more than 500,000 persons have been taught. 149,000 children were instructed in proper eating through the Nutrition course; 46,898 individuals passed the severe Red Cross tests in Life Saving and 52,596 persons passed the rigid examinations in the First Aid Course.

This work is supported from funds obtained in the annual Roll Call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 28.

SIX MILLION CHILDREN IN JUNIOR RED CROSS

The year 1929 marks the tenth anniversary of the founding of the American Junior Red Cross. There are now Junior Red Cross societies in forty-one nations, all pledged in the common cause of service to their fellow.

Membership in the American Junior Red Cross in the United States and insular possessions is 6,878,000, and is largely through grade and high schools and private schools. The organization is governed by the boys and girls. One of its chief features is conduct of international correspondence with schools of other nations, through exchange of albums and small gifts. The American Juniors sent 85,000 Christmas boxes of small gifts to children of many nations last year.

The American Junior Red Cross gained 349,171 in membership last year.

Fifty-one nations belong to the League of Red Cross Societies, and are prepared to carry on health, disaster relief and life saving programs all around the world.

"In School Days"

High School Gym Is
Scene of Sophomore
Halloween Party

Antioch Football Team Is Defeated By Leyden
Players

The high school gymnasium was the scene of a hard-time Halloween party given the sophomore class Friday evening. It was directed by Miss Schroeder and Mr. Hockett, the class advisors. The gym was beautifully decorated in Halloween colors. Games were played, ghost stories told, and Halloween stunts pulled off. The refreshments, which were served by the Junior girls, consisted of elder and donuts.

With a team which was strong on both offense and defense, Leyden defeated the Antioch players on the local field by a score of 12 to 0 on Friday afternoon.

The outstanding player on the Leyden team was Wolkewitz, and his line, which was especially virile, broke through several times in order to prevent Antioch's placing.

The victory was gratifying to Coach Watson, inasmuch as this was the first time that he had brought a team to Antioch, since leaving the local school. This was also occasion for getting even with Antioch for a defeat handed his team during last year's basketball tournament.

As the result of the game Friday, two now outstanding boys, Harold Hoffman and Tony Fuchs, were discovered on the local team. During the entire game it was plainly evident to the coach and the spectators as well that something had happened to the Antioch team. It developed after the game that two of three linemen had broken the training rules the night before in order to enjoy their Halloween pranks to a late hour. This is the only blip that Antioch can offer.

The local fellows will play Libertyville there, on Armistice day. The game will start at 1:30.

The high school girls have already started their basketball season by practicing after school. They are being directed by Miss Schroeder.

Miss Alice Warner talked to Mr. Peterson's study class on the subject of "Emotion in Pictures", Tuesday.

As the week of Nov. 11-17 is educational week, the grade school has designated Tuesday as visiting day. Parents are urged to come early in the day in order to have ample time to observe classroom procedure as conducted by experts in their line.

An orchestra has been formulated at the grade school, with Miss Meyer in charge. She will be assisted by Mr. Salom from Evanston, who will give private lessons.

Each of the grades had a Halloween party last Thursday, with the exception of the eighth, which had a debate instead.

The freshmen are to sponsor an entertainment on Friday, Nov. 15. Their parents and friends are to be guests and the program will consist of varied numbers which will be staged by the members of the freshman class.

Menus for November 12 to 15:
Tuesday: Creamed veal and pork, 10c; mashed potatoes, 5c; buttered peas and carrots, 5c; head lettuce salad, 5c; butter sandwiches, 2 for 5c; cookies, 3c; olive, 1c; apples, 5c; milk, 5c; orange juice, 5c; peaches and cream, 5c.

Thursday: Creamed chicken, 12c; mashed potatoes, 5c; green beans, 5c; autumn salad, 5c; hot rolls, 2 for 5c; milk, 5c; chocolate, 5c; prune whip, 5c; pickles and olives, 1 cent cash.

Friday: Scalloped salmon, 10c; creamed peas, 5c; fruit salad, 5c; cheese sandwiches, 2 for 5c; milk, 5c; orange juice, 5c; apples, 5c; strawberry jello and cream, 5c.

AUTUMN
Look at the leaves in their beautiful shades.
Red ones and green ones, purple and grays,
The dear leaves are falling,
The old wind is calling,
To blow them away all away.
Virginia Depner.

WINTER IS NEAR
Winter is near and the winds begin to blow;
And cold shining cheeks now begin to glow;
Snow begins to fall in heaps,
And the snow comes out in leaps;
Snowballs in the air we hear;
Sometimes in our neck or ear,
But just the same it's being done,
So don't go away and miss the fun.
Arden Van Patten.

When the leaves begin to fall makes me think of winter call.
When the oak leaves disappear makes me think that winter's near.
And when spring comes and summer ends I know that winter's close again.
Franklin Crandall.

THE DEAREST MOON
The desert moon looks down
Upon the sand and sagebrush
As it shines upon a fleeting Panthom horse and man.

The mountains grim and hard
Know the story of this man,
But keeps their secret to themselves
As the Panthom rides his horse.
Bob Olson.

THANKSGIVING
Thanksgiving day will soon be here
A day of happiness and cheer
We have fed the turkey for days and weeks
To see her get fat enough to eat
We will have cranberry sauce and gooseberry jam
And other delights whatever we can
But Thanksgiving day is a day of prayer
So give God thanks for what we have here.
Juanita Gibbs.

THANKSGIVING
Thanksgiving day will soon be here,
The happiest day of all the year.
With the corn in their shocks
And the pumpkins in the bins
With the turkeys nice and fat
And the ducks with their quack,
Then the wind begins to blow
Then there comes the falling snow
But we don't mind the sight,
Because we have warm fire light.
Armond Dalgard.

The eighth grade class had a candy sale Friday afternoon.

Mr. Tronson took pictures of the first and second grades Thursday afternoon at their Halloween parties.

-have you driven
a Chevrolet Six?

Have you felt the thrill of its six-cylinder performance—so smooth, quiet and vibrationless that you almost forget there's a motor?

Have you known the satisfaction of its six-cylinder reserve power—ready to shoot you ahead at the traffic light, to carry you over the steepest hills, or to speed you along the highway?

And do you know that anyone who can afford any car can own a Chevrolet Six?

If you have never driven a six-cylinder car, it is impossible for you to form any idea of Chevrolet performance from your imagination alone.

Smoothness! No rumble in the body—no tremble in the steering wheel—no vibration to loosen windows and doors!

Flexibility! Power that flows in a silken stream—and never a trace of "lugging"!

Quiet! Hardly a whisper from the motor. You can drive it for hours without the slightest noise fatigue!

But why try to tell you the story when only a ride can give you the facts? Come in. There's a car waiting for you . . . Now!

GERMAN BATTLER TO MEET BRANDT IN PALACE WIND-UP

Baldwin and Ogren Billed for Semi-Windup Friday Night

Frank Wieth, husky scrapper from Baden, Germany, who was Jimmy Fay's opponent last Friday in the semi-windup fracas at the Palace, climbs up a notch this week and will be featured in the windup event with Gus Brandt, Chicago 157 pounder. Fay won over the Teuton last Friday night in four rounds, that is according to the judges, but eye-witnesses claim Wieth was "robbed" of the decision. Wieth had the edge on Fay in the third session but the judges disagreed. At the start of the fourth round Wieth nailed Fay with enough punches to win two ordinary rounds, but after the judges again disagreed, Referee Young pointed to Fay as the winner. The decision was booed.

Perhaps Wieth will get a better break when he meets Brandt here tomorrow night.

Billed to mix in the semi-windup are Ray Baldwin, Chicago, and Karl Ogren, Kenosha, while Clarence Brown and John Taylor are slated to meet in the fifth preliminary that is sure to be of windup caliber.

Hostilities will be opened by two 149-pound boys from Racine, Wisconsin, Bob Canossi and Charley Peterson. This is a return bout. Canossi won in four rounds last Friday night.

Paul Liberty, St. Paul, and Eddie Garlow, Kenosha, are principals in the second bout, and Joe Stowe, Kenosha, and Tommy Wilson, Chicago, will mix in the third preliminary.

The lightest boxers to appear on Friday's card are Ernie Kradichville, Racine, and Joe Ringler, Chicago, who will weigh in at 121 pounds.

Last Week's Fight Results

Windup

John Howard, Chicago, outslugged "Red" McDowell, Waukegan, in three rounds.

Semi-Windup

Jimmy Fay, McHenry, was given the decision over Frank Wieth, Germany, in four rounds.

Preliminaries

1. Robert Canossi, Racine, beat Charles Peterson, Racine, in four rounds.

2. Tommy Williams, Chicago, beat George Taylor, Waukegan, in three rounds.

3. Johnny Taylor, Waukegan, beat Eddie Garlow, Kenosha, in four rounds.

4. Stanley Moore, Chicago, beat Johnny Hughes, Kenosha, in three rounds.

5. Paul Liberty, St. Paul, Minn., beat Joe Stowe, Kenosha, in three rounds.

6. Joe Brown, Chicago, beat Ernie Kradichville, Racine, in three rounds.

NOVEMBER IS MOST DANGEROUS MONTH MOTOR CLUB WARNS

25,000 Safety Posters Are Issued to Schools

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 7.—"Cross Only at Crosswalks" is the timely warning printed and illustrated on 25,000 two-color safety posters just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor Club to as many schoolrooms in northern Illinois and northern Indiana.

The picture shows a group of children waiting on the sidewalk at the corner for a break in the traffic, in accordance with an order from a member of the school boys' safety patrol. A lone pupil, however, in the foreground, has detached himself and is running across the street towards the middle of the block and through traffic.

Teachers Asked to Assist

The teachers were asked in a letter accompanying the poster to stress the fact in classes that November is one of the most dangerous months of the year. Rain, sleet and snow on the windshields of automobiles, and the streets cut down the vision of drivers and also tend to make quick stopping extremely difficult. Pedestrians, according to statistics, are more careless when the weather is inclement. Children and adults alike are prone to hold umbrellas so that they obscure vision, and are also given to walking across streets with heads down, in order to keep the precipitation out of their faces. Teachers were also asked to request the children to leave home in plenty of time to reach the school without hurrying. It is believed that many children leave their homes at the last minute, and that some of the injuries among school children are solely the result of haste and resulting carelessness.

RABBIT HUNTER IS GIVEN STIFF FINE

Charles Pynacker, Kenosha, was fined $75 and costs in Justice Sam Tarbell's court here late Sunday for shooting rabbits out of season and without a state license. The man was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff A. G. Huhn when two dead rabbits were found in his hunting coat.

Pynacker was the third Kenosha man nabbed in three days for violation of the Illinois game code. One Kenosha man was arrested Friday for shooting pheasants and another was taken Saturday at Des Plaines for fishing without a license.

You Can't Stop It

No chore at all for us to look of the winter months, but, thank goodness, you can go right on driving your car in comfort during the frigid days to come. That is, you can if you will have your car properly prepared in advance.

This includes installing antifreeze, equipping your car with a heater, putting the correct grade of oil in your crankcase, cleaning and setting your carburetor, going over your motor, touching up your ignition points and bringing your battery up to full strength.

Make sure you "check" on all these points, for car trouble in winter is doubly disagreeable.

No chore at all for us to look things over. Estimates cheerfully given with no obligation.

Tradition

MUCH that we are—much that we hope to be, rests on the cornerstone of our community—TRADITION! This cornerstone is the foundation upon which to build the living center which was the vision of our stalwart forebears. What we have achieved as a community we owe to the loyal effort and invincible spirit of our Civic Forefathers—effort and spirit which has characterized American communities up thru the hard-lived years since the landing of the Mayflower. Our fathers and grandfathers, amid more humble surroundings, visioned a prosperous, happy living center. Generations of loyal, hardy citizenship have helped in its realization. It is from these intrepid men and women we gain the inspiration for our work. To them we owe our present day opportunities.

Why did they spend the years of effort if not to challenge—to spur us to further achievement?

Why have we these spirited American traditions—of which our community is so much a part—if not to urge us to CARRY ON! New times have brought new problems—new methods and industries; new communication and transportation systems; new problems requiring new answers; new emergencies demanding new strategy.

We face the task of taking stock of what we have—raising the standards of our community according to national comparisons—strengthening the fabric of our community life and building on to further growth, prosperity and happiness.

THERE IS NO STANDING STILL—WE MOVE FORWARD—OR, WE MOVE BACKWARD.

We present this page in appreciation of the rich heritage left us by "those who went before" and in realization of responsibility to our sons and daughters

SYNOPSIS

In New York, Hugh Chesby, English World War veteran, relates a story of a treasure in Constantinople in the existence of which his uncle, Lord Chesby, firmly believes. A cablegram notifies Hugh of his uncle's sailing for New York. At the dock Hugh and his chum, Jack Nash, learn from Watkins, Lord Chesby's valet, that the old gentleman has left with a stranger, purporting to be a friend of Hugh. A mysterious telephone message notifies Hugh that his uncle is in a hospital, dying, victim of an assassin. Before his death he babble of the treasure, and tells them he was stabbed by "Tou-tou." With Lord Chesby's body, Hugh and Jack sail for England. In London Hugh and Jack meet their war buddy, Nikka Zarenko, famous gypsy violinist, and pore over some old documents seemingly having a bearing on the treasure and its location. A hidden room, referred to as the "Prior's Vault," is frequently mentioned.

CHAPTER III

The Hilyer Party

Mr. Penfellow, the vicar, received us at the west door of the parish church, a gigantic edifice which was all that was left of the once noble foundation of the priory of St. Cuthbert of Crowdon. He escorted Hugh—and incidentally Nikka and me—up the center aisle to a high-walled pew directly under the choir.

The tempered light that stole through stained-glass windows left most of the space in shadow, but I desecrated beyond the breading of the crossing a second box-like pew identical with ours, and in it a company whose gay raucous and gabbling ways were out of place in contrast with the stolid piety of the village folk and neighboring clergy.

"There's Hilyer," muttered Hugh in my ear.

But we had no time to spare for observing the county's black sheep, Mr. Penfellow's quavering, nasal voice began to intone the stately rite of the Established Church for the dead. The shrill voices of the choir-boys resounded. Our eyes became fastened upon the oblong casket, resting on its low, cantalike under the choir railing, which contained the body of James Chesby, that quaint, whimsical, Twentieth century knight errant, who had upheld the traditions of his race by tilting over the world in pursuit of a prize which all sober men proclaimed to be impossible of attainment.

And he had as good as found it! Laughed at, derided, mocked and ridiculed, he had persisted doggedly in what he had regarded as his life work. He had succeeded where all others had failed or feared to venture. And at the last, probably when he envisaged complete success in his grasp, he had accepted death rather than yield the prize to any but his heir. He must have had good stuff in him, that slight, wan-faced slip of a man, whom I had only seen as he lay on his deathbed in the hospital, his eyes shining to the end with indomitable spirit.

As I thought of him, cur and backed by that brute Tontin, I found my fingers clenched on the book-rack in front of me; and glancing down, I saw Hugh's knuckles, too, were white. We exchanged a grin look. For the first time we understood fully that we were playing a man's game, a game in which there was no limit. And we experienced the thirst for action which comes from a desire to slake unsatisfied vengeance. This task we had set ourselves to was more than a hunt for treasure. It was likewise a pursuit of James Chesby's murderers.

My eyes chanced to stray toward the opposite side of the crossing, and in the shadows that hovered over the Hilyer pew I glimpsed a pair of eyes that gleamed with the evil green light of a beast of prey. For no instant only they showed. Then the shadows moved, and they disappeared. Startled, I looked again, and saw nothing. It must have been fancy. I told myself, a trick of the sunbeams filtered through the particled glass of the windows.

The formal service was soon ended, and after the congregation had filed out, a little knot of men from Chesby farms poised the casket on their shoulders and paced slowly after Mr. Penfellow and the verger down the broad, winding stairs to the illared crypt. At the east end, beneath the altar, the verger unlocked a massive oak door and behind that an iron grate. There was a minute's delay while he lit tall candles, and then the little procession marched on to the last resting place of the Chesbys.

"A very sad chapter in the glorious history of this ancient family," Mr. Nash murmured the vicar with moist eyes. "But surely no man could hope for a grander Valhalla."

He gestured toward the encircling tombs.

"All of the fine stone Elizabethan times. That is, all the lords and their ladies. Cadets and collateral are buried elsewhere in the church. The famous Lady Jane rests under the sarcophagus with the plain lid. I wish we might find the old crypt. It is somewhere under the priory grounds but she concealed it very effectively. The tradition is that the old lords were buried in their hall. They were all noted as warriors. Ah, Lord Chesby," as Hugh rose and walked over to us. "This has been very sad, very sad. Indeed. And yet, as I was saying to Mr. Nash, it is something for a man after he dies to be brought back to wait the Last Trump in such glorious company."

"I am afraid I have been thinking of the criminals who murdered my uncle," said Hugh curtly. "You have been very kind, sir. I should like to thank you and everybody else for what they have done. Where's Nikka, Jack? Gone up? Do you mind if I leave you to shut the vault, Mr. Penfellow? Thank you again."

He hooked his arm in mine, and together we passed out of that sepulchral chamber, with its great company of illustrious dead. Upstairs in the church Nikka was awaiting us.

"I'm sorry, Hugh," he exclaimed, taking Hugh's other arm. "I couldn't wait. There's something in me that

"But Surely No Man Could Hope for a Grander Valhalla."

rebels against your churches. I feel the same way about mosques and synagogues, for that matter. And as for being buried down in a close, stone-lined hole in the ground, horded in with other dead! He shivered violently. "I hope not! If there is a God—and there must be some kind of one to make the trees and hills and the grass and to put music in one's heart—why, I pray to Him that I shall lie on a hillside, with only the trees around me and the sun beating down."

Hugh smiled.

"Each to his own, Nikka. You are a gypsy, a son of the open road. I am an Englishman, son to these stone walls, that old house we came from. So long as they and I last we shall be indivisible."

It was a scant ten minutes' walk through the park to Castle Chesby. As we entered the drive, Watkins, who had driven back with the servants, came around the house from the stables and started to run toward us. "Somebody broke in whilst we were at church, your lordship," he panted when he was within earshot.

We were all startled.

"Anything missing?" questioned Hugh sharply.

"I can't say as yet, your lordship. They seem to have been only in the unoccupied parts. I fancy, sir, they didn't the time to go through the west wing."

We hastened into the house after him. A rear door had been forced. Desks, wardrobes, chests of drawers, closets, armories, every corner or piece of furniture that might conceal anything had been thoroughly ransacked. Drawers and their contents were still piled better-sketter on the floor.

"Do you suppose they could have found anything?" I asked.

"Watkins shook his head positively. "I am sure they could not, Mr. Nash, sir. I think I know most of the stuff that they have gone through. 'Is late lordship was not in the habit of keeping a thing he was precious of in the east wing or the main house, sir."

We left Watkins to supervise the servants in re-establishing order in the upset rooms, and returned to the west wing. In the gunroom, Hugh lit a cigarette and straddled his legs to front of the fire. Nikka and I dropped into the lounge that faced the hearth.

"Well," said Hugh, and his lips had resumed the grim line I had noticed in church.

"Who are they?" I suggested.

"Good idea," approved Hugh, and he rang the bell by the door.

"Watkins arrived with the celerity of a djin.

"Watty, I wish you'd make inquiries along the roads, and find out if any strangers have been seen around the place this morning. Oh, yes, and tell the servants not to talk. You understand?"

"That was another good idea," said Nikka. "Our best bet is to keep our mouths shut. They, wherever they are, have us guessing. Maybe we can make them guess a little. And that reminds me, do you realize that they have saved us quite a bit of searching? I'd suggest that we waste no time in going thoroughly over this wing, ourselves."

We set to work with gusto. On my suggestion—they nominated me cautain in this enterprise because of my supposed architectural knowledge—we commenced with the gunroom. We examined it from end to end, tapped the paneling for secret recesses, examined the furniture. No result.

After luncheon, we began on the upper floor and went over the entire wing in detail. We measured the different rooms. I even took outer measurements. We studied chimneys. We sounded floors. Immersed in the hunt and baffled by lack of success, we caused Watkins to put off dinner, and worked on until after nine o'clock. Still no success.

We went to bed that night, tired out and disgusted. But in the morning we arose with sharpened interest and determined to canvass the possibilities in the parts of the house the invaders had searched. Again we took careful measurements, inside and out. Again we sounded paneling, investigated recesses and chimney spaces. We hunted for two days. Then we went back, and re-examined the west wing a second time. We ended up in stark disappointment in the gunroom.

Nikka, who had relapsed into one of his frequent spells of silent contemplation, jumped suddenly from his chair.

"If it is here, it is in this room," he said.

"Is that a gypsy prophecy?" jeered Hugh.

There was a racket of mallets outside in the drive, and Watkins appeared in the doorway.

"Pardon, your lordship. But I thought you would wish to know Mr. Hilyer and his party have just driven up."

"The devil they have!" exclaimed Hugh. "I suppose we'll have to see 'em."

But Watkins lingered in the doorway.

"What is it?"

Watkins cleared his throat.

"You may remember you instructed me to inquire if strangers had been seen on the roads 'ereabouts the morning of the funeral, your lordship? 'Gins, the carpenter said one of Mr. Hilyer's motors passed on the London road close on noon, but that was all."

"Well, that doesn't help any," said Hugh. "Whoever did it must have taken to the woods and cut across to the Channel road."

"They need only have dropped over the park wall to reach the London road, your lordship," suggested Watkins.

"Oh, I see your point," agreed Hugh. "Then Hilyer's people might have seen them. I'll find an opportunity to speak to him about it."

"Thank you, your lordship."

And Watkins withdrew.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hilyer, your lordship!" he announced a short time afterward. Hilyer was a lean, rangy chap, with a hatchet face and close-set eyes. He looked what he was: good blood gone wrong.

His wife was a handsome, stern-looking woman, awfully well turned out. She was absolutely in the mode, as perfect as a show-girl in a Gayety production. And she had cold eyes that saw everything, and never lost their glitter even when her manner was warmest.

"Hello, Hugh!" exclaimed Hilyer. "Frightfully glad to see you home again, but rotten sorry for the occasion. You don't know Mrs. Hilyer, I believe."

Hugh bowed to her with cold precision.

"Thanks, Hilyer—" just a shade of emphasis on the family name—"it was kind of you to come. We are keeping bachelor's hall, Mrs. Hilyer, and I am afraid our resources are limited."

"Don't let that bother you," protested Mrs. Hilyer affably. "And if you and your friends want any lively diversion on the quiet, remember we keep liberty hall over at Little Depping. We wanted our—"

But I lost the thread of her conversation as I found myself staring into those same evil green eyes that I had seen peering out of the shadows of the Hilyer pew the morning of the funeral. The man they belonged to had entered the room immediately after the Hilyers. He would have challenged attention in any company with his amazing personality, the strange force that radiated from him. He had the long arms, short, thick legs and enormous body of a gorilla, capped by a beautifully modeled head. But his eyes were his outstanding feature. They were large and vividly green like a cat's. The man was handsome in an intellectual way. Yet I found him repulsive.

Hilyer, undeterred by Hugh's frosty greeting, dropped his hand on this man's shoulder, and began introducing him.

"Signor Teodoroschi, gentlemen! The Italian chemist. And my other friends, Countess Sandra Vassilievna and Count Serge Vassilievich! I ought to explain they are brother and sister!"

This last with a well-bred leer.

"And Hilyer, gentlemen! If you know your Levant, you would recognize him without introduction."

I saw Nikka shift his attention at this from the two Russians to the Levantine, an olive-skinned individual, good-looking in a portly way, with a predatory, beaked nose, effeminate eyes and a sensual mouth.

"You see we're rather an international crowd—what?" Mrs. Hilyer was drawling.

"Very interesting, I'm sure," said Hugh, cold as ever. "You won't mind if I present my friends to you as a group? Thanks. This is Mr. Zarako and Mr. Nash."

"Not Mr. Nikka Zarenko?" exclaimed Mrs. Hilyer. "Oh, I say, it's a treat to meet you! How wonderfully you play!"

And she wrenched Nikka away from his obvious intent to probe the Levantine, and carried him off to a corner, along with Vassilievich, a slim-waisted, old-young man, with a hard, dissipated face. Hilyer, after a look around, joined the gorilla-like Italian, who was turning the pages of a review on the table, with occasional flushing glances toward the room. Montey Hilyer was volubly describing the prospects of the racing season to Hugh, and I was left in process of elimination to entertain the Countess Sandra Vassilievna.

She was a dark girl, with great, sleepy, almond-shaped eyes and a slouchy, willowy figure.

"You're an American, aren't you?" she said with a slight accent. "How do you happen to know Lord Chesby?"

I explained to her.

"He went to New York to earn his living! Ah, that is an old story," Mr. Nash, looking at my brother and me, looked forced to turn our hands to whatever we can do. The old world is a sad place these days. What shall you and your friends do now? But I suppose you will help Lord Chesby enjoy the life of an English country gentleman."

"For a while, yes," I agreed.

"And then?"

"I don't know, America, I suppose. One must earn a living."

"So you would leave him—Lord Chesby, I mean?"

I began to have a disagreeable feeling that I was being pumped.

"I can't stay here forever, you know," I retorted.

"Ah, but of course! And Lord Chesby? Will he marry an heiress, an American, perhaps? But not he does not need money, they say."

"They say a great many things," I commented.

"It may be he did it to leave America," she suggested. "One is so safe there. In Europe you can say what the future holds? Ah, Mr. Nash, were I an American I should stay at home."

"That sounds like a threat," I laughed.

"God forbid!" she ejaculated with true Russian pety. "It is that I envy your security."

"Are you staying in England?" I asked.

"Only temporarily. We shall be in Paris shortly."

I happened to look up at that moment, and surprised the Italian in one of his lightning surveys of the room.

"Your friend there seems exclusive," I remarked.

"Oh, he?" she said hastily. "He speaks no English, and he is sensitive about it. He talks little in any case. Those scientists, you know."

Hilyer left the Italian's side, and sauntered over to us.

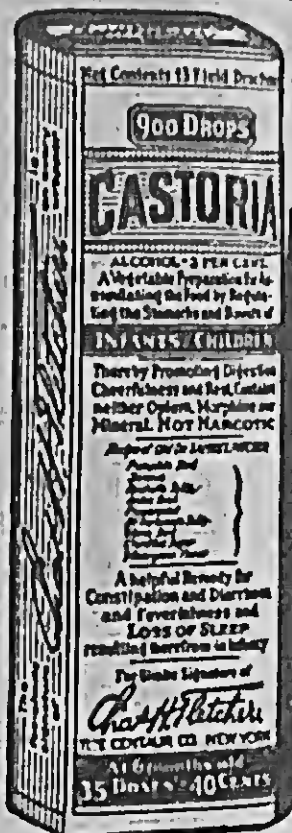

"A beautiful old room," he said. "Has it any history?"

"It's the oldest part of the present building," I told him. "I understand it represents a reconstruction during Elizabeth's reign."

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so. You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Lake on a Roof

A summer garden on the roof and a winter garden on the ground floor will be features of new flats being built on a corner site in London. Mr. Maello W. Harvey, the builder and architect, said the building will have ten floors, each covering an acre. The roof, 100 feet above the street level, and reached by four lifts or by marble stairs, will have two golf putting greens, a miniature lake, pergolas, rock gardens, and shrubberies.

When a man thinks he needs a stimulant it is probably a oap he needs.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

Delicacy That Wasn't to Elephant's Liking

I remember years ago we had an elephant which became a positive nuisance for stealing people's bags and parcels, says William Blore, in a London paper.

This particular elephant was much worse than the average. There was no stopping him. If he saw a banding or a paper parcel anywhere near his walk he had it!

One day there was an old gentleman standing by the side of the board walk with several children. Under his arm he carried a brown paper bag. The elephant was nearly level with him when he noticed the bag, and before you could say "knife" there was a startled cry from the old gentleman—the elephant had the bag.

His keeper gave him a shout and a sharp tap on the head, but it was no use, the elephant was not letting go, and in a moment had the bag in his mouth!

Only for a second. In a moment there was a shrill trumpeting of indignation and horror, and out came a crushed-looking bag with something green protruding. The old gentleman had been carrying home a fine specimen of South American cactus with prickles about two inches long!

Straw Through Board

The energy with which a body strikes an object determines the piercing effect and jamming effect of the body. Energy is measured by the product of the mass of the body and the square of the velocity. Thus a very small body moving with a high velocity can possess just as much kinetic energy as a large body moving slowly. The straw driven by a cyclone is hurled through the air at an enormous velocity and expends its energy in going through the wood. This happens so quickly that the inertia of the straw keeps it from crumpling up before piercing.

Fast Ocean Traveler

The bureau of fisheries says that the bonito, a member of the mackerel family, probably is the fastest swimmer, but a definite answer is not possible.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE.

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

Robinson
Crusoe's Isle

Harbor of Juan Fernandez.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
IF YOU board a "wind jammer" at Valparaiso, Chile, and sail almost due west, on the eighth day out, you will sight an island that has been read about by more people than has any other little island in the world. It is Juan Fernandez, Robinson Crusoe's Isle.

Strangely beautiful is this island.
Climbing 3,000 feet up from the sea,
its woody ridges lie wreathed in fantastic lace patterns of silvery fog. As one rows ashore, the landscape rolls down like some giant theater's drop curtain, its green ferns, forests and streams painted by nature's own hand.

Now, where Crusoe hunted, handles a hamlet of Chilean fisher folk,
with the boats and sheds of a lobster-catching industry. Delicate, delicious lobsters they are, but the men who catch them will clamber over a whole boatload to quarrel about a can of American salmon!

Mas-a-Tierra (Landward)—is the correct name of this island on which Alexander Selkirk, reputed hero of Defoe's romance, was put ashore.

Near by is Santa Clara, or Goat Island, and about 100 miles westward lies Mas-a-Fuero, or Further Out Island. These three form the Juan Fernandez group, named after the Spaniard who discovered them in 1563. Now they belong to Chile—in law; but la imaginacion every school boy on earth claims a proprietary interest here.

High up the side of Mas-a-Tierra stands a tablet which reads:

In Memory
of Alexander Selkirk,
Mariner.

A native of Largo, in the county of Fife, Scotland, who lived on this island in complete solitude for four years and four months. He was landed from the Claque Porto galley, 66 tons, 10 guns, A. D. 1704, and was taken off in the Duke, privateer, 12th Feb., 1709. He died
Lieutenant of H. M. S. Weymouth
A. D. 1723, aged 47 years. This tablet is erected near Selkirk's lookout, by Commodore Powell and the officers of H. M. S. Topaze, A. D. 1803.

To day on this island one hears much talk about lobsters, but little of Robinson Crusoe. The ony-going,
Spanish-speaking inhabitants, shut off from the world and the scores of books describing their island; do not suspect how famous it is. Nearly all its 237 people make a living in the lobster trade.

Huge Lobster Industry.

Here is one of the most extraordinary shellfish industries in the world.
In one year 80,000 or more lobsters are caught, not counting the small ones thrown back. Time was when these creatures swarmed the shores in such armies that the islanders had only to throw bits of meat along the beach, then walk about with a stick and tip the lobsters over on their backs.

Due to wise conservation methods of the Chilean government, island waters still abound with lobsters; but now they are caught with hoop nets set off shore and baited with stale fish.
The fishermen go out, long before dawn to the traps. Over a charcoal stove sternal they make coffee and broll fish for breakfast, but nobody ever eats a lobster.

To keep the catch alive, buckets of sea water are dashed over the crawling creatures and a tarpaulin is used to shade them from the sun. No lobster remains long in good health and spirits out of salt water. So, usually within 24 hours after catching them, the Crusoe island fishermen try to get their lobsters to port and into the "live cars." These are scows made of slats, floating half-submerged in Cumberland bay, in which the lobsters are held captive.

Twice a month a boat sails from the island. It carries the scant mail, any passengers, and a load of lobsters, which are often two and a half feet long and weigh as much as from ten to twelve pounds. On the island the price paid the fishermen is but nominal; yet in the market at Valparaiso a live Crusoe island lobster may bring the equivalent of from three to five dollars. On a cargo table in Buenos Aires the same lobster, after his trans-
Andean trip, sells for more.

The lobster of Juan Fernandez (Pallastus frontalis (Moline Edwards)) is minus the large claws which distinguish the lobster of our North Atlantic waters (Homarus americanus).

It is a close relative of the American crawfish known as the spiny lobster in Florida.

Besides wild goat shooting, fishing around the island's rocky shores affords all the amazing luck that adglers' tales are spun from. Here are the big mornys, or wolf fish, fierce and voracious; then the fighting vidriola, or what we would call amber jacks, or yellowtail, which occur all up this coast. Around Juan Fernandez the latter often weigh 100 pounds or more.

Many kinds of sea bass also abound, with no end of delicate pan fish—the tarel, caribina, wankfish or croaker, the pampanito and palometa, the smelt, the jerguilla. Here, too, the flying fish is eaten.

Storehouse of Fiction.

There is probably more excuse for fiction about Juan Fernandez than about any other place its size on earth.
For 300 years pirates, earthquakes, whirlers, penit colonies, battle, and political storms have swept this now calm and dreamy island. In the hillside above Cumberland bay one sees the tiers of cells, like the Roman entombments, dug to hold prisoners when Chile used the island as a penal colony. Out in the harbor lies the hulk of the German cruiser Dresden, sunk
during the World war.

Once vast packs of sea lions haunted
the island rocks. Anson, English buc-caneer, wrote home that there were so many of these creatures here that he couldn't move a ship's boat without putting a man in her bows with an oar to drive them aside. Traders slew them for oil, and wild dogs killed their young on the beaches; so now the sea lions seldom frequent these waters.

To kill off the wild goats, and thus cut off the fresh meat supply for the English and Dutch pirates who plagued the coast, Spanish rulers of Chile long ago sent bands of dogs to this island;
but the plan failed. The dogs couldn't catch the goats among the rocks.

There may be buried pirate chests on this island. Quidan sabe? But priceless treasure, indeed, was left by Anson and other early explorers. They planted vegetables and fruit seeds, and let loose pigs, cows and horses.

It was an unwritten law, tradition says, that every ship calling here in old days, whether merchant, whaler, or buccaneer, should leave animals or plants, and thus help stock the island for the common good. In consequence the variety of useful plant life here is unparalleled in the Pacific. Cows, pigs and horses are plentiful also.
Boys chase wild horses around the grassy canyons where Crusoe and Friday hunted goats.

In a single garden, a spot of darazing beauty, belonging to a Frenchman shipwrecked here more than thirty years ago, is an astounding grouping of exotic and native plants and trees. Here grew, among other things, the botanically famous chonta palm,
of which highly polished walking sticks are made. The creamy-white wood feels like antia and is marked with glistening black lines.

Many Wrecks on Its Shores.
Far up the moist island slopes are glaint green ferns, bizarre and out-landish, like the fantastic plant life pictured to us as shading the earth in the time of mud and reptiles. Except where trails have been cut or fires have burnt them off, these ferns are so big and thick that it is hard to walk among them.

Juan Fernandez has a few good beaches, but mostly its shores are rocky, rough, or steep, with swift currents whirling past towering volcanic cliffs. Many a stout ship has piled up here as can be seen from moss-grown remains of forgotten wrecks.

Long ago Captain Shelvocke's Speedwell went to pieces on these rocks. At that time cats, multiplied from a few left ashore by earlier ships, fairly overran the island. Shipwrecked sailors from the Speedwell lived for weeks on cat meat. Their hunger found more substantial relief from one meal of cat meat than from five meals of seal or fish, wrote Shelvocke in his journal.

There are no wheeled vehicles on the island, and nowhere on its whole 40 square miles is a road—only paths.
There is a school and a seldom-attended church, but there are no places of amusement. No stores; just one room in the lobster factory at Cumberland bay, open twice a week, where natives may buy articles from the mainland through an agent of the lobster-catching company.

To Buy Gold Medal Flour

"Gold Medal 'Kitchen-tested' Flour Never Fails
—Makes More Bread Per Sack"
Says Miss Pearson

Miss Edna Pearson, Sioux City, Iowa

This New-Type Flour
Banishes Baking Failures

WOMEN all over the country declare they have taken the
"guess work" out of baking...
Now they get perfect results every time with bread, cakes, pies and biscuits.

They use a new-type flour for all baking purposes—GOLD MEDAL
"Kitchen-tested" Flour—that simplifies baking remarkably and banishes the cause of most baking failures.

Failures, experts found, were mostly due to the fact that 2 sacks

of the same flour often acted differ-ently, even with the same recipe...
it was not uniform in oven action.

So now all GOLD MEDAL Flour is "Kitchen-tested" before it comes to you. As each batch comes through the mill it is tested by actual baking—bread, cakes, biscuits, pastries—in an oven just like yours.

Only flour which acts the same perfect way every time is allowed to go out to you. Thus you know in advance exactly what your results will be.

Work of Patient Artist

In a shop at Nantucket, says the Boston Globe, some New Bedford (Mass.) girls noticed what looked like a cherry stone set on a base like that of a collar button. They inquired what it was and were told it was a spoon holder, and when they looked incredulous, the proprietor of the shop removed the cherry stone from its base and shook out of it two dozen silver spoons. Each spoon had an unmistakable bowl, yet one which would hold no more than a microscopic drop of tea. The novelty was the work of a Nantucketer whose keenness of vision and skill in handicraft excited admiration and wonder.

For Best Results
in Home Dyeing

You can always give richer, deeper,
more brilliant colors to faded or out-of-style dresses, hosiery, containers, etc., with Diamond Dyes.
And the colors stay in through wear and washing!

Here's the reason. Diamond
Dyes contain the highest quality anilines money can buy. And it's the anilines that count! They are the very life of dyes.

Plenty of pure anilines make Diamond Dyes easy to use. They go on evenly without spotting or streaking. Try them next time and see why authorities recommend them; why millions of women will use no other dyes.

You get Diamond Dyes for the same price as ordinary dyes; 15c, at any drug store.
